Mid- Autumn MOON Festivals in Asia

Mid-Autumn Moon Festivals:

中秋节 (Zhōngqiūjié) in China & Taiwan

Who? People with Chinese roots around the world. Erin's aunt is from Taiwan, so she knows about this. Erin's aunt & uncle met in Australia because her grandparents hosted international students too! What a cool family!

What? The Mooncake Festival! Chinese Golden Week! It is one of the most important holidays in Chinese culture.

Where? China, Taiwan, Macau, Hong Kong, Chinatowns, etc.

When? The date changes every year but the night of the full moon from the middle of September to the beginning of October. It is based on the Chinese sun & moon calendar. In is like the Autumn Equinox in our sun calendar. It is September 10th, 2022 and September 29th, 2023.

Why? It is to remember the legend of the Moon Goddess, Chang'e and her unlucky love. Check out the Netflix movie Over the Moon (2020) to see a new take on this old tale.

How? People make and eat delicious mooncakes! Mooncakes are pastries with various things inside them. For example: red bean, lotus seed, fruit, chocolate, or meat. People visit their friends and exchange mooncakes. Some people try matchmaking! There are parties with dragon dancing, lantern lighting, and fireworks. In the U.S.A., we have 'Homecoming Weekend', a big formal dance and American football game at schools. So maybe Chinese Americans enjoy both cultures at the same time. Like in the Disney Channel Original Movie, Wendy Wu: Homecoming Warrior (2006).

Tết Trung Thu in Vietnam

Who?

People with Vietnamese roots around the world. Erin and my friend in Japan is Vietnamese Australian. Her name is Kelly and she celebrates this festival! The woman in the Ao Dai (traditional Vietnamese dress) on the left of the page is named Kelly too! What a crazy coincidence! She is Kelly Marie Tran from Star Wars. She is Vietnamese American.

What?

The Vietnamese Children's Festival!

Where?

Vietnam

When?

The date changes every year but the night of the full moon from the middle of September to the beginning of October. It is September 10th, 2022 and September 29th, 2023.

Why?

Kelly says the festival is to honor the story of Uncle Cuội flying to the moon on a magic banyan tree. If you look at the moon, you can see a man sitting under a tree! Children use lights to show Cuoi the way back to Earth. They parade on the streets.

How?

People pick rice before the festival then give thanks to the God of the Earth. Adults give children beautiful and fun toys after all the hard work. Usually a star lamp, a carp lamp, and a colorful mask. Everyone eats mooncakes (bánh trung thu)! Then, when the full moon is high in the sky, children sing and dance together. There are even lion dances for children to watch.

Mid-Autumn Moon Festivals:

추석 (Chuseok) in Korea

Who?

People with Korean roots around the world. Our old English teacher, Miss Crystal, lived and worked in South Korea for 7 years! Many K-pop stars take cute pictures in hanbok (Korean traditional dress) for the holiday. The old 'Nation's Girl Group' at the bottom is Girls' Generation, 소녀시대 in Korean, or 女子時代 in Japanese. They are a little old now, but I still love them!

What?

Korean Thanksgiving! A harvest festival! National holiday in South Korea.

Where?

South Korea (& North Korea)

When?

The date changes every year but the night of the full moon in September or October. Chuseok is three days in South Korea and only one day in North Korea. It is September 9th-11th, 2022 and September 28th-30th, 2023.

Why?

It is a day to be thankful for family, friends, and Korean culture. It is full of family traditions, like American Thanksgiving in November.

How?

Crystal says that everyone goes home to be with their families, so the cities are not busy. There is a lot of travel at this time. Everyone must buy 'Chuseok' gifts so there are big care packages full of anything and everything! Workers usually receive one from their companies before a few days of vacation. Crystal says she was always so happy to get cans of Spam!

お月見 (O-Tsukimi) in Japan

Who?

People with Japanese roots around the world. I (Sheila) don't have any Japanese roots, but I live in Japan now, so I am happy to join this celebration! I love astrology so seeing the moon and stars is fun for me. But it is hard to see the night sky in Tokyo because the city lights are so bright.

What?

Moon-viewing, which means watching the full moon. In Japan, you say that there is a rabbit who lives on the moon, right? And sometimes he makes mochi, rice cakes? In English-speaking countries, we don't think that. We say that the moon is made of cheese! I like cheese more than mochi!

Where?

Japan

When?

In the sun calendar we use now, Tsukimi is at two different times. Usually, a few days in September for the full moon and then one in October for the changing moon. The main days are September the 10th-13th, 2022 and September 29th- October 2nd, 2023.

Why?

It is a night to honor the beauty of the autumn moon since the Heian era (794-1185).

How?

If hanami is cherry blossom-viewing in the spring, then tsukimi is moon-viewing in the fall! People picnic together under the full moon and sometimes drink sake, Japanese rice wine. Let's eat mochi and white rice dumplings called tsukimi dango! Then, let's have edamame, chestnuts, taro, and sweet potato. For the month, you can try a special Tsukimi Burger at McDonalds too. The egg on the sandwich looks like a full moon!

CULTURE CORNER!

Extra, extra... read all about it!

Who?

It is run by me (Sheila) and Miss Erin for English Club... and anyone interested in the world! For all Keika girls! <3

What?

A collection of fun things from around the world! Word games, board games, puzzles, card games, dolls, books, DVD's, CD's, costumes, postcards, Keika Chronicle archives, origami, art supplies, and more! And there is a student → teacher letter box too!

Where?

Sheila's desk in the 2F Teachers' Room

When?

Tuesday's – Saturday's, 8:25am - 4:25pm.

Why?

I wanted a chance to share all my fun games, international stories, and pop culture recommendations with you! And I want to hear yours about Japan too!

How?

When you are free, come see me at my desk! If I am not there, I am probably up at Miss Erin's desk in the 3F Teachers' Room. Or maybe in the 3F English Room with Miss Rachel. Don't be scared! Mr. Morikawa, Mr. Ando, and Mr. Ishibashi's desks are next to mine to help you.

If you want to borrow anything, please use the checkout card- like at the library! And please leave me a message anytime in the letter box if you want! If you promise to write in English, you can use my cute stationary. Then, I will reply with a letter & cute sticker. ;D

XOXO,
Sheila
& Erin
